

IT Infrastructure Decommissioning Vendor Assessment Checklist

Whether you need to move, upgrade, or retire your IT assets, your organization should engage a trustworthy team. Technology recycling experts deliver outstanding and extensive ITAD services. They should support your decommissioning project in a responsible, efficient, and secure manner.

Use this checklist to help you identify the right professional.

On-Site Services

- Does the company provide project planning support before their servicing?
- Does this vendor offer on-site data destruction services to maximize data security?
- Can this professional perform services without disrupting the client's daily operations?

Data Destruction

- Does this industry specialist facilitate multiple methods of data destruction?
- Can this company manage different types of storage media?
- Can this vendor destroy high volumes of data?
- Do the various destruction options this business offers meet DoD guidelines?
- If the technology destruction has to be handled off-site, how does this professional guarantee an unbroken chain of custody?

Asset Recovery

- Does this vendor treat the equipment carefully during the decommissioning process?
- Does this company run assessments to evaluate the reusability of each asset for resell?
- Can it ensure reformatting each hardware to its maximum appraisal value?
- Is this vendor an industry expert who can sell your equipment and obtain maximum value?
- Does it have a diverse network in IT secondary markets?
- Does the company hold a strong business presence in the various Global Markets?

Recycling Obsolete Parts & Commodities

- Can the company guarantee or provide proof that no e-waste is illegally exported or sent to landfills?
- Do their processes meet industry standards and guidelines?

Headquarters
13975 Monte Vista Ave
Chino, CA 91710 U.S.A
Info@EDMrecycling.com
909 315 6698

Every business relationship starts with a conversation.
Connect with us at www.EDMRecycling.com.
Click here to learn about the various services EDM offers.